

I know you never said that you would let go
I know you never said that you would let go
A promise is a promise, that's true

I know you never said that you would let go
I know you never said that you would let go
Here and now, we're talking down to you
Here and now, we're looking down on you

I know you never said that you would let go
I know you never said that you would let go
Often times the hardest thing to do is tell the truth
A king can swing just as easily from a noose as you

Now don't it feel like sweet
Coming after the blues?

*I'll do whatever it takes to keep us together
I'll do whatever it takes to make you feel alright
Stop you're bitching tonight, I'm begging*

*Look up here, there's someone missing
He should have been onstage with a guitar in his hands
'Stead he crawled out on his knees
Feel free to flee faster, please
My brain screams, 'Who needs friends like these?'*

*So, lock me in a black box, I'm sure I'll be fine
At the end of the world I could possibly find
That I miss all of you
I guess I'm sorry, too
I guess I could never say that a second time*

*I'll do whatever it takes to keep us together
I'll do whatever it takes to make you feel alright
Tonight*

I know you never said that you would let go
I know you never said that you would let go
So smile, wave, and try to be prepared

I know you never said that you would let go
I know you never said that you would let go
A promise is a promise, that's true

Now don't it feel like sweet
Coming after the blues?

I'll do whatever it takes to keep us together
